We’re constantly working to help customers reach their goals. Fidelity’s products and services include an agricultural productivity fund and a thematic mutual funds—In Q2, customer demand helped spur the development of eight new digital currencies and blockchains. As part of Fidelity’s focus on innovation, we’re constantly testing new capital markets to identify promising opportunities. In Q2, we launched a new institutional platform that offers a full-service account opening experience for institutional investors, and our first suite of active equity ETFs available commission-free* to individual investors and financial advisors through our Fidelity Go® platform.

Fidelity has a scale of range of investment products and services to help customers through all phases of their financial lives. We believe the breadth and depth of our investment offerings make it hard for competitors to match our offerings. In terms of interconnected digital platforms, we continue to lead the industry for our customers, present and future.”

In Q2, customer demand helped spur the development of eight new digital currencies and blockchains. As part of Fidelity’s focus on innovation, we’re constantly testing new capital markets to identify promising opportunities. Fidelity’s systematic investment approach helps us identify opportunities early, data-driven, real-time at scale. And as a result, we can respond to market movement quickly and with confidence. For example, we moved our global workforce to work-from-home and responded to the resulting increases in client engagements while continuing to serve tens of millions of retail, financial, institutional, and employer clients.

While market volatility and the pandemic upended the country, Americans turned to Fidelity. New customers came to Fidelity in record numbers in Q2 because they want to work with a company they can count on to deliver expert planning and guidance, innovative products and services, and reliable and smooth technology.

We’re constantly working to help customers reach their goals. Fidelity’s products and services are always evolving to help meet changing customer preferences, long-term developments in the economy, and emerging opportunities.

In Q2, customer demand helped spur the development of eight new digital currencies and blockchains. As part of Fidelity’s focus on innovation, we’re constantly testing new capital markets to identify promising opportunities. Fidelity’s systematic investment approach helps us identify opportunities early, data-driven, real-time at scale. And as a result, we can respond to market movement quickly and with confidence. For example, we moved our global workforce to work-from-home and responded to the resulting increases in client engagements while continuing to serve tens of millions of retail, financial, institutional, and employer clients.

We’re constantly working to help customers reach their goals. Fidelity’s products and services are always evolving to help meet changing customer preferences, long-term developments in the economy, and emerging opportunities.

In Q2, customer demand helped spur the development of eight new digital currencies and blockchains. As part of Fidelity’s focus on innovation, we’re constantly testing new capital markets to identify promising opportunities. Fidelity’s systematic investment approach helps us identify opportunities early, data-driven, real-time at scale. And as a result, we can respond to market movement quickly and with confidence. For example, we moved our global workforce to work-from-home and responded to the resulting increases in client engagements while continuing to serve tens of millions of retail, financial, institutional, and employer clients.

We’re constantly working to help customers reach their goals. Fidelity’s products and services are always evolving to help meet changing customer preferences, long-term developments in the economy, and emerging opportunities.

In Q2, customer demand helped spur the development of eight new digital currencies and blockchains. As part of Fidelity’s focus on innovation, we’re constantly testing new capital markets to identify promising opportunities. Fidelity’s systematic investment approach helps us identify opportunities early, data-driven, real-time at scale. And as a result, we can respond to market movement quickly and with confidence. For example, we moved our global workforce to work-from-home and responded to the resulting increases in client engagements while continuing to serve tens of millions of retail, financial, institutional, and employer clients.

We’re constantly working to help customers reach their goals. Fidelity’s products and services are always evolving to help meet changing customer preferences, long-term developments in the economy, and emerging opportunities.