

IMPORTANT TAX INFORMATION

2012: Important Information for Indiana Residents

This information may assist you in preparing your Indiana state income tax return.

If during 2012 you were an Indiana resident and owned shares of any of the funds listed in the table on the following page, then a portion of the interest dividends you received may be exempt from Indiana state income tax.

Interest from certain bonds, notes, and other evidences of indebtedness (commonly known as municipal bonds) issued by non-federal governmental entities outside Indiana should be subject to Indiana state income tax if acquired by a fund on or after January 1, 2012.

To determine the amount of interest dividends that may be exempt from Indiana state income tax, multiply the total 2012 interest dividend amount you received for each fund by the applicable Indiana exempt percentage of income listed in the table. To find the 2012 interest dividend amount you received for each fund, refer to the Tax-Exempt Interest column of the supplemental State/Local Tax-Exempt Income from Fidelity Funds section of your 2012 Tax Reporting Statement.

The following example shows how an Indiana investor who owned Fidelity® Municipal Income Fund would calculate the portion of his or her dividend that may be exempt from Indiana income tax. For the purpose of this example, assume that the investor received a total 2012 tax-exempt interest dividend of $1,000 from the fund.

Federal Tax-Exempt Interest Dividend Distribution (from 2012 Tax Reporting Statement)		Indiana Exempt Percentage of Income (from table)		Portion of Dividend Distribution that may be exempt from Indiana Income Tax
$1,000.00	x	92.50%	=	$925.00

We suggest that you consult your tax adviser, who is most familiar with your circumstances and the laws of the state in which you reside, to determine how you should report this information on your state income tax return.
