

2009: Important Information for Rhode Island Residents

This information may help you prepare your Rhode Island state income tax return. Rhode Island provides for a reduced state income tax rate applicable to capital gains from the sale of assets held for more than five years. The table on the following page lists the percentage of each applicable capital gain distribution attributable to the sale of securities held longer than five years by certain funds.

The amount of each capital gain distribution you received is reported:

- For Fidelity Brokerage Accounts, in the Detail Information Section of your 2009 Tax Reporting Statement (1099-DIV Dividends and Distributions)
- For Fidelity Mutual Fund Accounts, in the Transaction Details Section of your 2009 year-end Investment Report

If you determine that the special rate applicable to capital gains from assets held for more than five years applies to the capital gains distributions you have received from certain mutual funds, the following example illustrates how you might calculate the amount of your capital gains distribution that qualifies for the special rate. The example shows how a Fidelity Government Income Fund shareholder, who received a total of $1,100 in 2009 capital gain distributions from the fund, might calculate the amount of those capital gain distributions that may be eligible for a reduced Rhode Island state income tax rate applicable to capital gains from assets held for more than five years. As the example shows, each applicable distribution may be subject to a different percentage.

Date of Capital Gain Distribution	Distribution Amount (from Tax Statement or year-end Investment Report)		Eligible Percentage (from Table)	=	Amount of Distribution Potentially Eligible for Reduced RI Rate
9/11/2009	$500	X	17.98%	=	$89.90
12/18/2009	$600	X	1.13%	=	$6.78
Total Fidelity Government Income Fund capital gain distributions that may be eligible for a reduced RI state income tax rate				=	$96.68
