

Choose and Refuse

Write a short story that describes a choice you had to make. In the story, include information about what you had to choose and about your opportunity cost. Also explain why you had to choose. Then draw a picture showing your alternatives, the choice you made, and your opportunity cost. Be creative.

Here is an example:

Yesterday after school, I had a half hour before dinner to do whatever I wanted. I could have played a computer game, watched television, or practiced shooting baskets. I had several options.

I chose to practice shooting baskets because I have a game coming up this Saturday. My opportunity cost was watching television because that's what I would have done if I hadn't practiced basketball.

I had to choose because I only had a half hour available and I could not do many activities in that short time.
